VETERANS AND THE CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEM: IDENTIFYING BARRIERS AND CREATING SOLUTIONS

Wednesday, April 24, 2019 ~ 1pm-3pm Sacramento Federal Courthouse 501 I Street – First Floor Justice Anthony Kennedy Library and Learning Center

According to the National Institute of Corrections, "Veterans are coming home and struggling with not only the physical wounds of war. but also the "invisible" wounds of war: post-traumatic stress disorder and traumatic brain injury. They are also experiencing high rates of anxiety and depression. These veterans are not typically criminals prior to their military service. However, as a result of their experience in the military — particularly those who were deployed to a combat zone — some of them have difficulty adjusting to civilian life when they return home...Unfortunately, some of these men and women become involved in the criminal justice system."

Please join us as we discuss the realities our Veterans face in our criminal justice system. We will look at the "why", the needs, and the many barriers our justice-involved Veterans face. We will also discuss unique, evolving solutions for Veterans in our Federal and county/state judicial systems. Meet community providers and advocates who are making an impact, community partnerships in support, and hear inspiring stories of hope.

Our Guest Speakers:

Honorable Carolyn K. Delaney United States Magistrate Judge Veterans Court – California Eastern District Travis Nelson AMFT, APCC Spark Center for Self-Development Operation Iraqi Freedom Veteran Veterans Advocate and Treatment Provider

SUPREME COURT

Kansas v. Glover, No. 18-556. The Supreme Court granted certiorari to address whether, for purposes of an investigative stop under the Fourth Amendment, it is reasonable for an officer to suspect that the registered owner of a vehicle is the one driving the vehicle absent any information to the contrary.

Mathena v. Malvo, 18-217. Certiorari granted to consider whether the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit erred in concluding — in direct conflict with Virginia's highest court and other courts — that a decision of the Supreme Court, Montgomery v. Louisiana, addressing whether a new constitutional rule announced in an earlier decision, Miller v. Alabama, applies retroactively on collateral review may properly be interpreted as modifying and substantively expanding the very rule whose retroactivity was in question.

Ramos v. Louisiana, 18-5924. Certiorari granted to consider whether the 14th Amendment fully incorporates the Sixth Amendment guarantee of a unanimous verdict.

Kahler v. Kansas, 18-6135. Certiorari granted to consider whether the Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments permit a state to abolish the insanity defense.

NINTH CIRCUIT

US v. Cooley, No. 17-30022 (3-21-19)(Berzon w/Thacker & Hurwitz). The Ninth Circuit affirms the district court's suppression of evidence (meth) arising from a tribal officer's encounter, on a public nontribal road, with a non-Indian defendant. The district court suppressed for lack of jurisdiction: a tribal officer does not have authority to detain an individual on a public road unless it is obvious or apparent the individual is violating state or federal law. Indian jurisdiction is political (Antelope) and based on sovereignty. Here, the officer went beyond his jurisdiction. Since the officer did not inquire about status, and the defendant was a non-Indian, the detention was invalid. Under ICRA (Indian Civil Rights Act), exclusion of evidence is proper.

US v. Door, No. 17-30165 (3-12-19)(Christen w/Thomas & McKeown). This is a Guidelines sentencing issue in a prohibited firearm possessor case. Using the categorical approach, the Ninth Circuit remanded for resentencing because a Washington conviction for second-degree assault was not a "crime of violence."

US v. Read, No. 17-10439 (3-14-19)(Hawkins with M. Smith & Hurwitz). In an issue of first impression, the Ninth Circuit holds that a defendant has a Sixth Amendment right to demand that counsel not present an insanity defense. The Ninth Circuit finds that McCoy v. Louisiana, 138 S. Ct. 1500 (2018) requires such an outcome. The error is structural. The conviction is vacated and remanded for a new trial.

US v. Jauregul, No. 16-50429 (3-22-19)(Berzon w/N. Smith; concurrence by Berzon; dissent by Castel). In a fact-specific opinion, the Ninth Circuit orders a resentencing in a conspiracy to import appeal. The resentencing was the result of the court sentencing the defendant for conspiracy to import meth, when the facts admitted at the sentencing were only for conspiracy to import marijuana. That conviction had a maximum of five years. At the colloquy, the defendant only admitted he entered into a conspiracy for importing marijuana; he withdrew; and then he took the car over the border, when there was a reasonable foreseeability that it might contain meth. He admitted no facts of a meth importation conspiracy. Ninth Circuit precedent, US v. Banuelos, 322 F.3d 700 (9th Cir. 2003), requires admission of the object by the conspirators. A court under Apprendicannot cannot import facts of conspirators. The error was plain, and required a resentencing. The guilty plea remains.
